

And we will make the Gods confest Montalls enjoy some Rappine Sit the Down

Cupid has but one Game, but I can spy 10000 Cupids in thine eye

Non may the Gods hold our breath For just the eyes doe dazzle us if thou fearst

That would betray thee with his sight
I let me escape thee from his sight
And in light I shade thee from his eye
O let me live thoo gently say I yield

On women

Women are dainty & vellell, fine, fond, or neat, & soft & shining Therefore they must be loved & treated Because they have soe oft

A notice

women are bound in with floure, brought up in Europe, and have lived in 1300 and floure being the husbands to be King in the side in Rousellory.

On a Maiden ^{Boys} [b. 62] 3 Fairer than the sun to look the countenance
That men see boys, yet might seeme of age Thou hast a goodly boy (with and about due yet 2 faire ^{glad} on the face ill lucke They are 2 indeed have him & thinking has They are yet and not good ye said glad Thine heart was both at due, but he is feared And yet which the both a state was bound.

x on holidays marriage and before the King Christ church amari ago mad before by boys And best that it should usant an offering
The King himselfe did offer, and yet I pray He offered twice or thre to go away.

x The unfortun
At more trouble, yet may be an Organist And poles, others may say what they had But would the chancellour suffer him to Such forlign verses on a Holiday.

x on a cripple
I cannot see now stand the cripple what does he thence if he says that he Eye