

things which p[re]sage both good & ill their which heaven foretells but mortals cannot see consider well before all other things our voices be kept we make to gods & Kings to leave me thus forsaken at y^r worst my state more wretched then it was at first grievous wrongs y^t in my bosome be should be as neere thy care as i to thee ~~the virtuous men passe~~ the virtuous men passe mildly away whispering to their souls to goe whilst some of their sad friends doe say Now his breath goes & some say no

So lett vs melt & make no noyse Nor tear flowers nor fight to impets more if were profanation of our ioyes To tell y^e Laitye of our Lene wounding of y^e earth cause harms & fears men reckon wth y^e did uncl^ament but trepidations of the spheres.

Though greater farr are innocent.

Dull. sublunarie, louens loue.
Whose soule is fence sencer, cannot admit of fence, by cause it hath renouue.
Those things which elemented it, be yet stay y^e fore in mischiefe vgly gate It comes too soone repentance full too late It neuer hath whinges & willy wind doth goe comforts a cripple & comes ener slow for when iust heuⁿ to chasticers is bene things conuert to our due punishment for when oppression's vpon y^e chin who lends not hand to thrust him in boldly in 15. But wee by loue, soe much refine,

That our selues know not what it is,
Enter assured of y^e mind,

Careless eyes, tygers hands doe miss,
6. Our two soles therefore, which are one Though I must goe, endure not yett
A reach, but an expansion,

As gould ayerie thims beat,
7. If they be two they are too soe
His stiff w^{id} compasses be two,
They soule th^e fixed foot makes no shew,

To moue, yet death if th' other doe
8. Stand though it in strongly center sit, Yet whilst th' other f^{oo}t doth come,
It leaues and harknes after it,

And grows erect as that comes home, 9. Such wilt thou be, to mee who must Like th' other foot obliquely run, Thy firmness makes my circle iust,
Stand makes mee end where I begun,
